

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf from an old book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. A vertical crease or fold is visible near the left edge, and there are some faint, dark marks scattered across the surface. The overall tone is a warm, off-white or light beige.

The Diplomatic Reception at the White House—Notes.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
Washington, February 14.—The President's Habit of the White House has been the attraction socially during the week. There have been, of course, many minor entertainments here,
but on the whole Washington has this winter seen nothing to compare with the diplomatic reception of Tuesday evening. The army and navy were invited and requested to appear in full uniform; the members of Congress, Supreme Court Judges, and heads of departments were invited to appear in civilian clothes. The line of carriages, which it was "crush." The line of carriages, which it was not usually extend farther than fairy
into the street from the White House steps, stretched past the Department of Justice,
down Fifteenth street past the Riggs House,
and down Pennsylvania avenue past Willard's
and farther.

From 8 until 10 was the hour set for the reception, but it was 10 or better before the guests began to arrive. The room was cleared. Missouri was well represented. The following were among the early arrivals: Mrs. Cockrell was tastefully dressed in light blue with a few choice mod ornaments. Representative and Mrs. Clardy were also present, accompanied by their children. Col. George E. Wright of Hatch and wife. Col. George E. Wright of St. Louis and Mrs. Wright. Col. Broadhead and wife accompanied by their children. Representative and Mrs. L. J. Davis. This being the diplomatic reception, the formal uniforms of course were present in full court costume. The army and navy officers had been requested to appear in full dress uniform. The members of the foreign officials, the uniforms of the army and navy officers and the elegant coquettes of the city of Washington. Every nation was represented, and every tongue spoke of the beauty of the costumes worn among the ladies as the position, as no one but Mrs. McElroy and the Cabinet ladies assisted in receiving. Mrs. McElroy, as lady-in-waitress, next to the president, was wearing an elegant costume of lilac satin, with lace and diamonds. Mrs. Frelinghuysen wore next, a black velvet and diamonds, and with the usual array of white ostrich feathers tipped upon her head, which somebody, as noted in last week's letter, seemed to have taken into consideration to conceal the lack of nature's covering for the head. Mrs. Lincoln was attired in white silk lined with pearls; Mrs. Chandler in black velvet and diamonds; Mrs. Gresham said blue velvet with open lace and diamonds; Mrs. Brewster, pink and white; Miss Arthur, blue and white; Miss Nellie Arthur, blue and white; the President's daughter, and Miss McElroy, blue and white. The President's daughter, in the blue room just in rear of the receiving party, Miss Arthur wearing a blue and white suit, and Miss McElroy a suit of blue surah skin.

Congressman Kasson of Iowa was prominent in the group, as, indeed, was he at most of those social gatherings where anybody can go. "Do you know," he said, "I have never seen a divorcee. Kasson," that man has never been since his divorce what he was before. Of course he has never seen a divorcee since he divorced her. He had a charming wife when he came here as a Congressman, a woman who was a very good mother and now they were divorced, and this was the story of the event which led to it. Would a divorcee ever be seen again? I should tell you of it. It is a shameful any way, his former wife is now the wife of a well-respected and in society there, while Kassebaum is not an outcast, but certainly not Kassebaum's. The second reason that has been given is gone down hill from the day of his birth. However, he was one of the brightest and most successful men when that occurred, but he has lost much of his standing and influence since leaving his country. The third reason offered himself to one of Frelinghuysen's daughters, but was rejected. How true the story is in all these circles.

Miss Therie Blackburn, daughter of Senator-elect Blackburn of Kentucky, has returned from her father and will remain during the winter.

The President has accepted an invitation to attend the opera given at Lincoln Hall tomorrow evening for the benefit of the Ohio Soldiers' Home.

Justice Field gave a dinner at his home, in the old Capitol Prison building, in honor of his brothers, David Dudley and Cyrus W. Field, and a number of friends. He also gave a dinner in honor of her lady guests.

Representative Washburne of Minnesota opened a subscription for the purpose of giving a large circle of friends and fellow-Congressmen. The event will be a very profitable one and will largely exceed the most prominent people in society.

The Army and Navy Assembly and entertainment for the season at the Army Hall last evening. The guests were composed of the members of the corps which began at 12 o'clock, was led by Garlington of the army and Mr. B. Boyling of the navy. All the figures danced were in fairs.

As illustrating the case of punctiliousness of Washington society it may be interesting to state that the ladies who were invited were invited to the White House reception, Justice Field, who, of course, was invited, declined to go because he had been invited to dine with another lady, and the President, getting word of his dilemma, sent him a card asking him to sit next to her.

One of the most interesting events of the closing week of the season was the party given by Mrs. C. W. Martin's Hall, at which some of the most prominent ladies in society will take part. The affair was given under the patronage of Mrs. Attorney-General Brewster, Mrs. Gen-

Anderson, Mrs. Lydecker and Mrs. William Anderson, of the same place, are the recipients to plunk down their little $3 to aid in the expenses of the entertainment, a blessed privilege to which no white man is entitled to enjoy.

For General Deblity and Prostration Hop Busters will do wonders. Prove it by a trial.

In a mining camp at American Fork, Utah, some often miners have formed themselves into a club and call it "The Recreational Club of the United States." Their capital is a cabin with twelve feet of snow on the roof, and the funds are made up of a bill for the admission of Utah into the Union. A member of the club, "York" has but half a dollar of funds against the club, and he is tobacco that no newspaper in the territory would print his name. He was accepted on the floor of the house as a "member from Kansas," who won the prize of a bill for the admission of Utah into the Union.

...by an orator "who has been praised by the Church of Jesus Christ at Latter-day Saints."
